Curmudgeon's Observation

The difference between a powerboater and a sailor is that a powerboater gets on a boat to go somewhere. When a sailor gets on a boat, they are already there.

Remembering Bob Moates

From Steve Raper: One thing about Bob is that he always had such an even temperament that no matter how wrong things went whether it was racing, teaching a class or the weather - no matter what the situation, Bob always had a good sense of humor about it. I don't remember ever seeing him get upset or excitable when things got stressful.

One thing comes to mind that kind of illustrates that point. It was at the Mayors Cup many years ago and the beach was jam packed with multi-hulls. Bob had backed his Flying Scot, Battleship, up to the hill to set it up. When we finished putting it together I noticed that none of the wheels, including the jack stand wheel were chocked. I pointed that out to Bob - he said 'it would fine' as is. I said 'Okay... but you've got three wheels and they all roll'. So, a few minutes later we were in the parking lot area talking to other sailors and I noticed Battleship starting to slowly inch out of her parking spot. She picked up speed as she went downhill headed straight towards the concrete ramp at the beach and finally stopped when she crashed into a couple of multihulls that she had damaged a bit. We got the mess cleaned up and Battleship back in her parking spot where I asked 'Bob, what do you think about chocking those wheels now?'. Bob laughed, shook his head in agreement, flashed that killer smile of his at me and said 'Sounds like a good idea Steve!'.

From Bill and Sonja: David sent Sonja an email about Bob's passing. We were very sad to hear this. We have kept in touch with Bob and Carol since we moved. Bob and Carol were at the same table at the first Change of Watch we attended. Bob explained to me what a barber hauler was. I had never heard the phrase before.

Remembering Ken Warren

From Tom Bews: Very sad about Ken. He told me he wanted to make it to 90, but I guess it was not to be. I will miss avoiding him on the race course because he always had right of way – he earned it!!

From Dalton Cox: Sorry to hear about Ken. He was the first person to take me on as crew at Lake Townsend. I remember picking his brain the first few races and he would only give me vague answers. I finally laughed and said I understood he was trying to protect his race secrets. He laughed back, tossed me a beer and then started teaching me some of his tricks. He was fun to sail with and an inspiration to learn from.
